Subject: Supporting Children with NDIS Early Childhood Supports

Dear Educators,

We are reaching out to introduce Trauma Education and Behaviour Consultancy, a registered NDIS provider under Early Childhood Supports.

We work with families and early childhood professionals to support children aged 0–6 years experiencing trauma-based behaviour concerns, developmental delay, behavioural challenges, and emotional regulation difficulties.

We welcome referrals from early childhood settings who have concerns about a child's development.

Our Role in Supporting Early Childhood Settings

As part of our work, we collaborate closely with early childhood educators to:

- Support understanding of children's NDIS goals
- Provide trauma-informed behaviour support strategies
- Share recommendations from assessments (with parental consent)
- Offer practical ideas for inclusion, regulation, and skill-building
- Contribute to care planning and transition processes
- Build educator capacity through consultation and reflective practice

We acknowledge and value the vital role that early childhood educators play in a child's life. Our goal is not to add to your workload but to work alongside your team, providing guidance and tools that are tailored, respectful, and evidence based.

How We Work

All services are delivered under the child's existing NDIS plan. We aim to ensure our involvement is:

- Child- and family-centred
- Culturally responsive
- Flexible around routines and program times
- Focused on long-term developmental outcomes

We may request opportunities to observe the child in context, meet with educators, or provide brief written strategies that align with your program and policies.

Contact Us

If you have any questions, concerns, or ideas about how we can best support your team and the child(ren) involved, we welcome your input. Strong partnerships between educators, families, and professionals are essential to a child's success—and we deeply value your role in that process.

Please complete the referral form to arrange a meeting.

We look forward to supporting you and your educators.

Warm regards,

Sally McPherson
